

Are you a midwife thinking about setting up your own business but not sure how to go about it?

Do you want to continue caring for pregnant women but need a better work-life balance?

If you're considering working for yourself and want to find out more about what's involved, join us for our exciting

Business Masterclass for Midwives

27th June 2018 at the Doubletree by Hilton Hotel in London's West End

This informal day will introduce you to what's involved in setting up your own business. We'll explore the services you may want to offer and help you to work out if this really is for you. You'll hear from experts about the financial and professional issues you need to address. You'll also meet midwives who've already taken the step to work for themselves and hear about their successes and the difficulties they've faced along the way.

Our Masterclass is hosted by Denise Tiran, a midwifery lecturer with 14 years' experience of running her own education company. Denise now mentors midwives wanting to work in private practice, runs a businesswomen's support group and was 2015 runner-up in a Women in Business Awards.

To introduce you to life as a business entrepreneur, we're holding this Masterclass in a premier hotel in the heart of London's West End, with delicious refreshments throughout the day. Why not come with a friend, stay over, do some sightseeing and take in a show afterwards?

The fee for the day is just £200 + VAT (total £240). The £200 fee is redeemable against our new business training course with Expectancy in the 2018-2019 academic year (four online sessions plus two study days).

Invest in yourself!
